Aims & Scope

The Journal of Clinical Speech and Language Studies is a peer-reviewed periodical published by the Irish Association of Speech and Language Therapists (IASLT). The purpose of the Journal is to encourage and showcase the growing research environment in Ireland and to provide a forum for the exchange of information and discussion of both clinical and theoretical issues regarding communication science and disorders in children and adults, swallowing and its disorders, as well as speech and language therapy.

The Journal publishes a range of articles – experimental and clinically oriented papers, reviews, discussions, and clinical fora. Studies from both quantitative and qualitative frameworks are encouraged. They must have appropriate and clear methodology and thoroughly analysed and interpreted results. The Journal also publishes readers’ responses and book review but advanced notification to the Editor(s) is required. In order to encourage the growing research environment in Ireland, papers based on high standard student honours projects and conference papers presented at the IASLT Conference are welcomed.

The Journal is published once a year. Members of the IASLT will receive a hard copy of the Journal and the correspondence author will receive an electronic copy of the published paper. Electronic copies of the latest and back issues will be made available from the IASLT website: http://www.iaslt.ie/

Copyright

The Journal of Clinical Speech and Language Studies considers all manuscripts on the condition that they are the property (copyright) of the submitting author(s). A copyright agreement will be sent to the corresponding author if the paper is accepted. This will have to be signed and returned to the Editor(s) for transferring the copyright to the Journal. Papers which are published in the Journal of Clinical Speech and Language Studies are the property of the Journal and permission to republish must be obtained from the Editor(s).

Contributors who wish to include in their manuscript copyrighted materials (e.g., figure, table, etc.) that are owned by a party other than the contributors are required to secure permission for the reproduction of these materials.

Submission of Manuscripts

Submission of a manuscript to the Journal should be made directly to the Editor(s):

Dr. Alice Lee
Department of Speech and Hearing Sciences
The submission should be accompanied by a cover letter or email stating that the submitted manuscript comprises original work which has not been published, nor being considered for publication elsewhere; and that the study on which the paper has been based has received full ethical approval by an appropriate Research Ethics Committee.

First-time authors who plan to submit a manuscript based on their Bachelor’s dissertation or Master’s thesis are strongly advised to work on the paper with their research supervisor(s) who are familiar with the general logistics and requirements of journal submission.

Review Process

Manuscripts submitted will be double-blind peer-reviewed by at least two independent reviewers and where relevant by a statistical assessor. Generally, authors remain anonymous before these reviewers but this may not be possible in the case of publishing IALST conference papers. It is usual for manuscripts to undergo revision following suggestions made by the reviewers before being finally accepted for publication. The final decision regarding publication including priority rests with the Editor(s).

The following is a general guide for the review and manuscript revision time:

- Time for peer review of a manuscript: 6 weeks
- Time for completing minor revision: 30 days
- Time for completing major revision: 60 days
- No deadline in case of re-submission

Preparation of Manuscripts

Please follow the guidelines stated below when preparing the manuscript. Manuscripts that do not comply with these requirements will be returned to the author(s) for correction before peer review.

All manuscripts must be written in English. Word limit is approximately 4,500 words for research papers and 2,000 words for reviews and discussions (excluding references). The manuscripts should be typed in 12pt font and in double space on A4 paper with margins of 1 inch or 2.54 cm.

The order of the manuscript should be:

Title page: This should include the article title, the full name, degree(s), and affiliation(s) of the submitting author(s), as well as the contact information (i.e., corresponding address, telephone and fax numbers, and email address) of the corresponding author.

Abstract: This should not exceed 200 words. For experimental and clinically oriented papers, this should include the following sections – objective(s), method, main results, conclusion, and any clinical implications, where appropriate.

Key words: 3-8 words.
Text: For research papers, this should include background, aim(s), methods and procedures, results, discussion, conclusions and implications. For reviews and discussion, this should include background, aim(s), methods, outcomes, conclusions and implications.

Appendices (as appropriate)

Tables and Figures: Each table or figure should appear on its own page; do not embed them in the text. Tables and figures must be clearly numbered, with the title and caption above the corresponding table and figure respectively. Avoid using colour and tints in the tables and figures for purely aesthetic reasons and do not use "special effects", for example, three-dimensional bar graphs, in the figures. Individual figures should be saved and sent in TIFF format with 300 dpi or higher.

Please also note the following:

- Please write clearly and concisely, stating your objectives clearly and defining your terms. Your arguments should be substantiated with well reasoned supporting evidence.
- In writing your paper, you are encouraged to review articles in the area you are addressing which have been previously published in the Journal, and where you feel appropriate, to reference them. This will enhance context, coherence, and continuity for readers.
- For all manuscripts, gender-, race-, and creed-inclusive language is mandatory.

References should be cited following the APA style (see the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, sixth edition) in the text. In the References section, references should be alphabetized in the following formats:
